Caption: Data are generated with $m = 5$ views and $p = 4$ disturbances, consisting of 2 Gaussian and 2 non-Gaussian disturbances. We vary the number of views in which the 2 Gaussian disturbances have equal variances. The error increases abruptly only when variances are equal in all views, which justifies Assumption 1.